THE GREAT BETRAYAL

(This is the first of a series of articles by A. B. Bennett on the present Zionist Situation).

e "white paper" just issued by the MacDonald government in to the Palestine situation is unmistakably a repudiation of the Bal- claration and the terms of the British mandate over Palesine.

e reasoning which seeks to justify the new policy is crudely sophist- ill deceive no one. It were better that MacDonald adopted an at- d tone of blunt arbitrariness than seeking by specious logic to hat is palpably indefensible.

re is the situation reduced to its simplest elements:

estine was a waste neglected land mismanaged and misruled by a f the Arab population under Turkish dominion.

e Jews, a scattered people cherishing a strange love for the land fathers, hoping to have a portion of their members repatriated to h a homeland where Jewish history might again be woven.

ne Lord Balfour, a responsible spokesman of the great British and said to the Jews in effect:

pledge you the support of His Majesty's government for your d program of reestablishing a national Jewish homeland in your land of Palestine. We will do everything in our power to facili- undertaking, with the understanding of course, that the civil ical rights of the resident population are not to be defeated."

is pledge was supported and ratified by the leading nations of the nd made a part of the program of the League of Nations.

Of the three great Pilgrimage Festivals—Succoth, Passover and Shabuoth—the last named is perhaps the least observed of any Jewish festival today. Passover, because of the fond associations with the Exodus from Egypt and the birth of a people which linger in the memory of the Jewish masses, and although synagogues may no longer be filled on the feast of freedom as once they were, at least the Seder is clung to by enough to make the holiday still effective, and where the individual Seder in the home has been abandoned, large and happy communal feasts are held, thus lending some semblance of reality to this originally agricultural festival in a largely commercial age. Succoth, too, with its frail booths, its luscious fruits and its gladdening wine, yet appeals to many hearts. Shabuoth alone seems to have fallen into general desuetude. Even the minor holidays—Chanukah and Purim—with their dances and masquerades, maintain their former potency, at least in the hearts of the young. But Shabuoth seems to have fallen into sorry straits. And natural seems the cause. No particular or peculiar ceremonies mark this day. Whereas Passover has its family or communal feast, Succoth its proud processions and lovely tabernacles; Shabuoth, except for certain chants and prayers, is celebrated by no distinctive rites. Hence, although the Jew has converted an old agricultural festival into the anniversary of the "Matan Torah," the giving of the Ten Commandments on Sinai's heights presumably revealed on the sixth day of Sivan, this thought alone has failed to stir the imagination of the modern Jew. We live in an age when authority is anything but popular, and so this ancient revelation impinged on the Shabuoth festival has not saved it from general disuse, and so, in thousands of synagogues on Monday last, Shabuoth was rather perfunctorily and indifferently observed—and in not a few, callously neglected.

But one thing promises to rescue the Feast of Weeks from utter oblivion. The Confirmation ceremony, first introduced in Germany about the beginning of the nineteenth century and carried to America some two decades later, has revivified this ancient festival, at least in the ranks of Reform Judaism. Here, at least, is one answer of the Reformers to the spurious charge so frequently levelled against them that they have but cast aside and shattered, that they have but destroyed and torn down the essential beauty of their faith without contributing aught of a constructive nature. The Confirmation ceremony is an eloquent response, as it lends richness and fervor to a fast disappearing feast. What was more natural than to utilize this day, presumably the anniversary of the formation of an eternal Covenant between God and Israel as the hour of initiation into the fold of our faith. Thus in liberal temples throughout Europe and America, young boys and girls, after an intensive grounding in the essentials of their faith, are formally received amid an enchantingly beautiful service, into the family of Israel.

For some reason this lovely ceremony has failed to capture the imagination of Canadian Jewry, even in the ranks of Reform. Much of the enthusiasm and fervor marking the American youths attitude toward this ceremony seem to be lacking here. Several causes may contribute to this

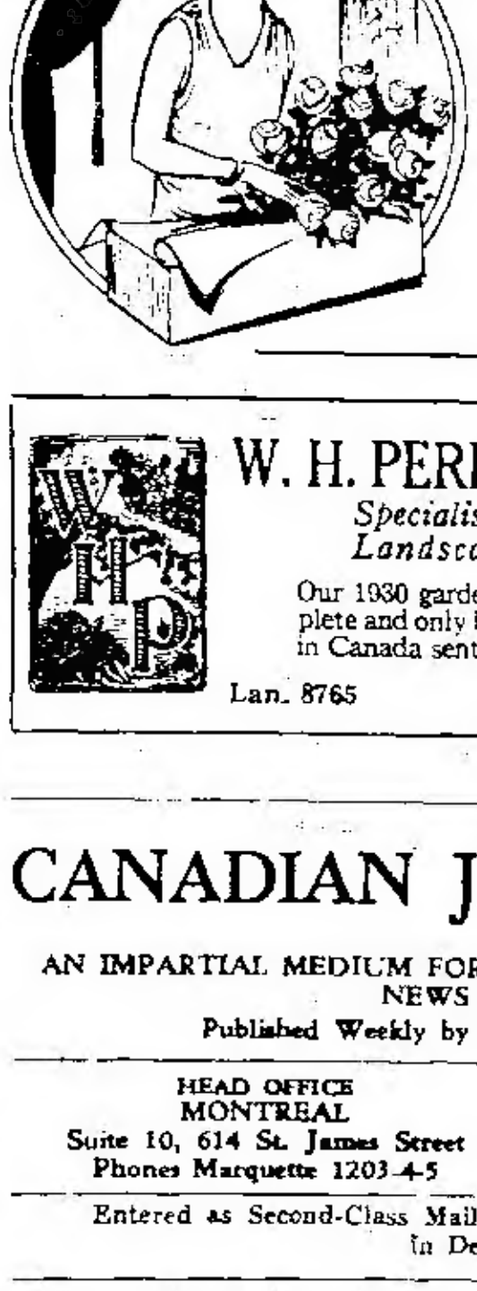
Marriages

Blond-Conter

The marriage of Rose, daughter of A. Conter, of Sydney, N. S., to Harry Blond, son of Mrs. Blond, was solemnized quietly at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 29, in the vestry of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue. Rabbi Charles Bender officiated.

Stark-Nisenberg

The marriage of Miss Annette Nisenberg, of New York, formerly of Montreal, daughter of Mrs. J. Cohen, to Jules Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Stark, was solemnized Sunday, June 1, at 3.30 p.m. at Beth David Synagogue with Rabbi Herschorn officiating. The bride was given away by her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Lustgarten. She wore an ivory satin gown on princess lines with border of rose point lace and tulle forming a train. Her tulle veil, sprayed with orange blossoms, was in halo effect and formed a long train. She carried a white prayer book with spray of lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Doretta Stark, sister of the groom, was in green chiffon and tulle with hat to match and carried an old fashioned nosegay of sweet peas and roses. Isidore Aspler was best man. The bridesmaids were Misses Ida Nisenberg, wearing a green taffeta period gown; Ethel Stark, green taffeta and tulle; Beatrice Gerson, yellow and green taffeta; Miriam Issenman, green and yellow taffeta, and Ethel Haupt, eggshell and chartreuse chiffon; all with flower wreaths on their hair and carrying nosegays of sweet peas and roses. The groomsmen were Harry Barsha, Dave Scheckner, Simon Marmarek, Jack Horn, and Dave Haupt. Mildred Gerson was the flower girl wearing a green taffeta frock and with a basket of rose petals. Mrs. Lustgarten, sister of the bride, was in orchid and green printed chiffon with hat and shoes to match and corsage of roses. Mrs. Stark, mother of the groom, wore a black flat crepe gown with mohair hat and corsage of roses. A reception was held at 8.30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Adolphe Stark, Esplanade Avenue, for the immediate family. From out-of-town were Simon Marmarek, of New York;



FLOWERS BRING HAPPINESS!

Wherever and whenever received, flowers invariably bring joy to the fortunate recipient. Rays of sunshine they brighten the lives of all who receive them. Remember the old adage about "A rose to the living....." Why not call here TODAY and select a bouquet for someone who is near and dear to you?

Young Judaea Elects Officers

The first session of the seventh annual convention of Montreal Young Judaea was held Saturday evening, May 31, at the Zionist Headquarters. Joseph Frank the retiring president, gave the presidential address. In part he said: "Young Judaea is a remnant-part of the historic traditional "Yishub." A remnant of students intellectuals, the heap of soil from which the seed of leadership and Messiahship lays ready to spring forth. Young Judaea can be and has been in the life of Montreal Jewry the potent minority and nothing else. I could name numbers of young men and women who during the course of the last fifteen years have in some fashion or other had stimulating contacts with Young Judaea and Judaeans. It is this way the value of Young Judaea and Young Judaean training finds its realization. Persons have sought in our confines social and intellectual friendships and have found them. Friendships which will endure, for in the common cause of our people they have found stimulating companions dreaming the dreams of the first Judaean leaders and carrying on their work." Meeting Sunday morning, June 1, was the Finance Committee: Benjamin Caplan, chairman, Harry J. Halperin and Joseph Frank; Nominations Committee, J. Frank, chairman, and S. H. Abrahamson, Charles Rosen, A. M. Klein, and Misses Rae Berlin, Fanny Balinsky, and Goldie Yellin. Educational Committee: S. H. Abrahamson, chairman, Charles Rosen, A. M. Klein, David Halperin, Benjamin Caplan, George Erlick, and Miss Miriam Khaner. General Resolutions Committee: Nathan Shuster, chairman, S. H. Abrahamson, Eli Berger, Sam Kwavnick, H. Hockenstein, and Misses Anna Gross, Rose Balinsky, Ida Lashinsky, and Esther Kositsky. Sunday afternoon the supervisor, S. H. Abrahamson, gave his report. Mr. Frank submitted the following slate of officers and executive: president, Benjamin Caplan; vice-president, S. H. Abrahamson, Miss Goldie Yellin, Secretary, David Halperin, associate, Miss Ida Lashinsky; treasurer, Harry J. Halperin, associate, Nathan Shuster. Executive Committee: Miss Rose Balinsky, Eli Berger, Miss Annie Gross, Harry Hockenstein, Miss Miriam Khaner, Samuel Kwavnick, Harry Kilger, Miss Sonya Shayne.

At a dinner dance at the Paramount Cafe on Metcalfe Street Tuesday evening, Louis Fitch, K.C., was the speaker. Joseph Frank, the retiring president, introduced the new officers.

The committee in charge of the floral decorations for the Shebuot Festival consisted of Mrs. W. Sebag-Montefiore and Mrs. I. Rose.

COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET GIVEN

Recognition of the rights of minorities was the outstanding theme of an address given by Alderman W. H. Biggar, leader of the City Council, at a complimentary banquet in honor of Alderman Max Seigler Wednesday night, May 28, at Kupchick's Dining Rooms, St. Catherine Street West. Lyon W. Jacobs, K.C., spoke. Louis Fitch, K.C., presided. Bob Gradinger was master of ceremonies, Murray Gordon was responsible for entertainment.

STORY OF
Youngest Licensed Electrician Now Attending CANADIAN SCHOOL OF ELECTRICITY

Mr. A. T. Viel who has the honor of being the youngest licensed electrician in the Province of Quebec, or possibly in the whole Dominion of Canada, was born on May 22nd, 1912 and attended the common grammar school from five to twelve years of age.

At twelve years, he began to work as plumber helper with his father. He studied electricity during his spare time and later on, worked as an electrician helper.

In July 1928, at sixteen years of age, he obtained his electrician licence, having had the required four years of experience. He was employed for a time by the Lower St. Lawrence Power Co. but as the nature of the work required some more technical knowledge in order to advance himself, he decided to take up a day course of instruction with the Canadian School of Electricity Limited.

He is doing remarkably well in all his studies and expects to graduate with honors in about six months.

ZIONISM FINDS ITSELF*

By WILLIAM ZUKERMAN

By Special Arrangement with The Nation. Mr. Zukerman is manager of the European bureau of the New York Jewish Morning Journal.

London, May 12

By some mysterious operation of the public mind British sympathy with the Jewish experiment in Palestine has increased since officialdom pronounced adverse judgment upon it. There is now, after the appearance of the report of the Palestine Commission, a decidedly more favorable tone in the press, together with a profounder understanding of the Jewish cause, than there was immediately after the tragic events of last August. At that time the entire British press was either openly antagonistic or at best very lukewarm to the Jewish side of the question in Palestine. Britain was admittedly put out by what had happened, and was inclined on the whole to blame the Jews for the difficult position in which it found itself. Not only the Daily Mails but also the Manchester Guardian and the better-class weeklies were unsympathetic. There was a note of sincerity expressive of the mood of the entire nation in the Rothermere propaganda cry: "Get out of Palestine."

There is a definite change now. The report of the Palestine Commission was received with an expression of pro-Jewish sympathy greater than anything ever heard before in this country. The reception of the report was, in fact, the exact antithesis to the report itself. In most of the more serious weekly journals it caused an outburst of enthusiasm for Zionism which was nothing short of amazing in view of the previous coldness. Not only the Liberal press but also the impartial Conservative journals are showing an increased appreciation of the Jewish achievements in Palestine and a better understanding of the Jewish point of view.

A similar tone of friendliness is heard often now also in the House of Commons at the question period, which of late has come to be the favorite time for tilting between the pro-Jewish and the pro-Arab forces in Parliament. The latter have now organized a parliamentary committee for "justice in Palestine," and with the arrival in London of the delegation of the Palestine Arab Executive, including the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, they have considerably increased their activity both in Parliament and outside. For the Arab delegation has committed the unpardonable error of affiliating itself altogether with the most reactionary and imperialistic group in British politics. Its meetings are sponsored by the "National League," broadcast by the Morning Post and the Daily Mail, presided over by Lord Brentford (Joynson-Hicks of Arcos-raid fame), and attended by those lords and ladies who see treason in Mr. MacDonald's policy in Egypt and India, socialism in Mr. Snowden's budget, and Russian communism in the work of the Jewish pioneers in Palestine. It has thus destroyed whatever belief there may have existed in liberal quarters in England that the outbreak in Palestine had something to do with real grievances on the part of the Arab people, and that the present Arab delegation represents someone besides the effendis of the country. In consequence, the forces in the House of Commons are now so arrayed that on the Jewish side are lined up the liberal and progressive elements in British politics and on the Arab side the conservative.

A factor which has largely contributed to molding this present mood toward Palestine is that through some unknown process operating upon social consciousness the country has somehow awakened now to the realization of the practical Jewish achievements in Palestine. What ten years of Jewish effort could not do, the few months which have elapsed since the August outbreak have achieved. Britain—and perhaps the rest of the world—seems suddenly to have realized that, apart from the interminable discussions about the Jewish national home and the incessant nagging about the Balfour Declaration, Zionists have in the last decade accomplished also a remarkable piece of constructive work in Palestine. A hundred thousand men have been transplated from the arid Ghettos into fruitful soil; a people economically sterile for centuries has become productive on the land as well as in industry; colonies have been built; new industries developed; cities established; an ancient language revived; and civilization in a derelict country has been furthered in ten years more than in generations before. And all this has been achieved without government aid or any assistance from outside; merely by the will, persistence, and enthusiasm of a voluntary social movement. The world, it seems, did not expect this, or at least did not know of it. The events of last August and the Arab propaganda which followed them have succeeded in drawing the attention of the world to the fact that however much of a failure Zionism may be politically, it has justified itself constructively, economically, and culturally. Politically Zionism has failed, but practically it has been successful. From the economic point of view, the Jewish experiment in Palestine is without doubt one of the more hopeful constructive efforts of the post-war period. This fact could not but awaken interest in England as soon as it became known through the publicity which the August tragedy provided. Anglo-Saxon respect for efficiency and success and for colonial work well done has been called into play, and this is doubtless one of the reasons for the greater degree of sympathy which British public opinion is manifesting now for Zionism.

But there is yet one other reason, far more potent and of much greater significance, for it lies within Zionism itself. Close observers of the movement and of its leadership in London know that Zionism today is different from what it was last summer at the six-teenth Zionist Congress at Zurich. Internally, the movement has undergone what amounts to a revolution. There has been a break in its ideology and a decided change in its activity. The political aspects of Zionism have been obscured, and the constructive and practical sides strengthened. ... intensely chauvinistic men from ... and with their wild talk of a Jewish majority and a Jewish state have been thoroughly discredited. The fact that even the most friendly non-Jewish liberal opinion throughout the world could not altogether absolve certain aspects of Zionism from partial responsibility for the Palestine outbreak has had a sobering effect on the majority of Zionists. For the first time in their history, perhaps, Jews found themselves at variance to some extent with the best liberal opinion of the world. At first it caused in Zionist quarters only pained surprise and deep resentment. That Jews should be even suspected of injustice to another race! But after the pain and the resentment came a searching of heart which has now resulted in a complete discrediting of those views and tactics which led up to the unfortunate Jewish demonstration on the eve of the August tragedy.

This came out very clearly at the last session of the administrative committee of the new Jewish Agency and the Zionist General Council held in London recently. These two bodies are the highest executive organs of the Zionist movement, and their sessions are almost tantamount to a Zionist Congress (they are indeed called the "Little Congress"). They control all Zionist activity in Palestine and outside it, and they are really indicative of the mood of the movement. At this "Little Congress" politics were almost completely eschewed, although the present political situation is undoubtedly the most critical which Zionism has had to face in the course of its existence. The interminable political debates which form the basis of Zionist congresses were conspicuously absent from the agenda. Instead, the deliberations were all concerned with practical problems of land purchase, land settlement, industrialization, and the relations with the Arabs. The theory of a Jewish majority in Palestine was thrown overboard by a resolution renouncing any "domination of Jews by Arabs as well as of Arabs by Jews." Although officially Zionism stands out against a parliament in Palestine, and there are no words strong enough for Zionists to condemn Dr. Magnes's peace efforts with the Arabs, nevertheless the "Little Congress" spent a good deal of its time in drafting definite plans for municipal and parliamentary representation in Palestine admittedly leading to the establishment of parliamentary government in Palestine and in preparing schemes for bringing about closer relations between Jews and Arabs. The motions introduced by the extremist group calling for the convocation of a new congress and embodying their political demands to the mandatory Power for the delivery of the full pound of political flesh promised by the Balfour Declaration were defeated by overwhelming majorities. More important still, the entire spirit of the gatherings was thoroughly hostile to the bombastic political talk which has been to the Arabs the most obnoxious part of Zionism.

And the most significant feature of this new mood in Zionism is that it was not altogether imposed upon the movement from outside, by reason of the recent events. These events helped to establish it, but they did not originate it. The struggle between the so-called "constructive" Zionism and "political" Zionism has been going on inside the Zionist ranks for over a generation. Whenever the political outlook of Zionism darkened the "constructionists" gained the ascendancy, and vice versa. Before the war Zionism was definitely settling down into a practical colonization movement, and the "politicians" were reduced to insignificance. The Balfour Declaration brought them out of their obscurity and bestowed upon them greater power than they had ever before held in Jewish social life.

The more sober Zionists did not even then, in the heyday of political Zionism, give up their plan of the practical upbuilding of the country, for they realized then, too, that a mere government paper cannot transform an Arab country into a Jewish state. This has been the view especially of Jewish labor in Palestine, which has always remained completely indifferent to the political side of the Balfour Declaration. The Jewish middle class, on the other hand, especially those hailing from Poland, based all their hopes on the political concessions of the British government. Fortunately for Zionism, it is labor that has built and is building the Jewish Palestine and that has accomplished everything that the Jews now have to show in the country. The only attempt of the Polish-Jewish middle class to participate in the upbuilding ended in disastrous failure in 1926. So the point of view of the real builders of Palestine has largely prevailed in Zionism. By another stroke of good fortune, the leader of the movement, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, very early adopted the same constructive point of view as Palestine labor, and has stubbornly stuck to his guns in spite of the most bitter and vehement opposition coming from Eastern Europe.

It was this point of view also that led to the creation of the new Jewish Agency last summer, which brought Zionism under the domination of the more practical and less politically minded American Jewry. The new body, which was the result of the combined efforts of Dr. Weizmann and the late Mr. Louis Marshall, represented the greatest victory of constructive, apolitical Zionism, as opposed to the Zionism based on the Balfour Declaration. It was an effort to save Zionism from the dangerous morass of Eastern European extremist nationalism and political futility; it was also an attempt to forestall the tragedy which anyone following the trend of events in Palestine could have seen coming. Unfortunately, it did not come in time to avert the August outbreak. The Palestine riots broke out a few days after the formation of the new agency, but the bloodshed shaped the new body and its policy just as it doomed the old.

Thus the recent tragedy in Palestine has not been in vain, at least for the Jews. It has helped them to find their balance in Palestine and to rediscover their traditional liberalism, which some of them had lost, probably for the first time in centuries. It has become clear even to the Jewish middle class of Poland that the Balfour Declaration is not an eleventh commandment, and that Jews cannot exchange their old moral law for a political one. Jews have again found their true selves in Palestine.

If Zionism were a biangular problem based on an understanding between only the Jews and the British, its knottiest question would have been solved now and its future clear. For both the Jews and the British have now a better understanding of their position and their duties in Palestine and of each other than they ever had before. But Zionism is a triangular problem. The Arabs also are involved, and not before they too have found their balance and have been purged of their extreme nationalism is the future of Zionism secure. The significance of the present moment is that an important step has now been taken in that direction.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Dame Rebecca Zinglesser, of the City of Montreal, and Province of Quebec, will apply to the Parliament of Canada at its present or next Session for a Bill of Divorce from Benjamin Caplan, of the said City of Montreal, Merchant, on the ground of desertion and adultery.

Y.M.H.A. Camp

The Y.M.H.A. Urban Camp is a project for relieving parents of looking after the play hours of their children during the summer vacation. The Y.M.H.A. feels that the summer months may be more constructive in instilling a sense of orderly enjoyment and appreciation of finer things than all the rest of the months of the year combined. The plan of the Urban Camp calls for the full time supervision of all the department heads of the Y.M.H.A., and especially of the educational, physical, and aquatic directors. The Y.M.H.A. Librarian will have charge of reading hours, story hours, and other building activities.

The outside play will be carried on according to schedule in the parks and playgrounds of the City, and the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, as well as the Parks and Playgrounds Association and the Boy Scout Organization of Montreal, will supply expert and attractive individuals to take charge of nature study hikes, scouting, arts and crafts, etc. Friday will be Health Day for medical examinations, health talks, first aid classes, etc. Every effort will be made to group the boys scientifically, and care will be taken not to tire the boys by excessive physical activity. The Y.M.H.A. will be parent, doctor, teacher, and playmate to the 1,500 boys who are expected to enroll in the Urban Camp. Every group of 20 boys will have a paid councillor or leader who will be with the boys throughout all their activities. The Urban Camp is free to members of the Y. of the ages of 10 to 14 years. Information at the office of the Y.M.H.A., 265 Mt. Royal West. Belair 7308.

Half-Yearly Statement of Bank of Montreal Makes Strong Exhibit

Total Assets Are $822,599,648 — Liquid Assets Are Over 51 Per cent of Liabilities to Public — Capital Has Been Increased to $36,000,000 and Rest Account to $38,000,000 — Profit and Loss Account Shows Gain For Half-Year Period.

The half-yearly statement of the Bank of Montreal makes a most interesting and reassuring exhibit. As is well-known, all financial and banking institutions, with business in general, have had to face during the past six months the unusual conditions subsequent to the stock market crash, but it is evident from its statement that the Bank of Montreal has been able to maintain its usual strong cash and liquid position and, in addition, to report satisfactory profits made for shareholders.

The general statement, which is for the six months to April 30, shows a number of changes. The paid-up capital now stands at $36,000,000, up from $34,548,760 a year ago, while the Rest has been increased to $38,000,000 from $35,548,760, and is two million dollars above the paid-up capital.

Increased Profits

It is likely due to the larger capital employed that the Bank has been able to report to shareholders slightly increased profits for the six months, as compared with the corresponding period last year. Profits amounted to $3,543,017, up from $3,491,651. There were also received in the six months payments of $51,459 as premiums on new stock. These amounts, when added to the balance carried forward, brought the total available for distribution up to $4,330,059. This was appropriated as follows: Dividends and interest on instalment payments on new stock $2,167,586; amount credited to rest account $51,459; provision for taxes Dominion Government $229,979; reservation for bank premises $600,000; leaving the balance of profit and loss to be carried forward at $1,281,033.

In the general statement of assets and liabilities, total assets are shown at $822,599,648, compared with $815,705,653 a year ago. Of this, liquid assets are reported at $413,450,296, equivalent to 51.03 per cent of liabilities to the public. Included in them are cash holdings of $94,42[illegible], equal to 12.90 per cent of public liabilities.

Current Loans Higher

At the same time there is a somewhat unexpected increase in current loans and discounts in Canada and these now are reported at $335,301,194, up from $314,464,137. While a portion of this increase may be attributed to the wheat situation, it is also known that there is an increased tendency on the part of large customers to avail themselves of banking accommodation.

As was to be expected, with the change in the general credit situation throughout the world, the most important variations are in the call loan department. Call loans in Canada are down to $27,460,856 from $39,369,779, and call loans in Great Britain and the United States have been reduced to $68,028,815 from $139,974,369. At the same time, balances due to the banks and banking correspondents elsewhere than in Canada—which to a great extent represented deposits temporarily placed on this side due to higher loan rates—are now down to $29,660,804 from $35,597,167.

Total deposits are now $885,067,752. Of this amount deposits bearing interest are $545,856,287 and deposits not bearing interest $130,418,937.

The statement, with its many features of strength, could hardly make its appearance at a more opportune time, and on this account the leading financial centres of the world will undoubtedly welcome the opportunity of seeing how fully this nation-wide institution has taken care of a situation involving many unusual conditions.

McINTYRE-PORCUPINE

The eighteenth annual report of McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Limited, for the year ended March 31st, 1930, describes a period of uninterrupted and satisfactory progress, says president J. H. Bickell. Gross production and earnings exceed and figure previously established. Ore reserves now gross $19,-817,424 with an average grade of $8.30 per ton. Comparing this total with $16,-179,205 at $8.00 grade, as reported in the previous year, and having regard for this year's gross mine production of $4,657,188, it will be seen that the ore developed in the period under review had an estimated gross value of $7,895,407. McIntyre's net profit for the year, before depreciation are equal to $2.58 per share.

HUDSON BAY MINING & SMELTING

A special general meeting of shareholders of Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Company has been called for June 9th next, for the purpose of voting on a proposal for directors to increase the capital from 2,500,000 shares to 3,000,-000 shares and to create an issue of $5,000,000 five-year 6% convertible debentures.

It is stated that shareholders will be entitled to subscribe to $100. in debentures for each 50 shares of stock held and that J. P. Morgan & Company have undertaken the entire issue.

HOLLINGER GOLD

Porcupine insists that new ore developments of more than passing interest and importance have been secured at Hollinger Consolidated.

Asked about these reports, N. A. Timmins, president, said to The Northern Miner"—"I don't feel that I should talk about new ore in detail yet, because the occurrences may not prove to be very extensive when we get over to them with our underground work. But we are opening up considerable new ore and making very good and very interesting discoveries in diamond drilling. Of course, some of these bodies may prove, under intensive development, to have only very short lengths of ore."

CENTRAL MANITOBA

T. C. Anderson, vice-president of the Central Manitoba Mines, states that valuable and encouraging information regarding geological conditions together with indications of ore were found in the last two drill holes. Any small amount of high grade encountered could be added to the substantial tonnage of low grade now on hand and would serve to keep the mill operating. Present indications, however, are that this will be enclosed down in order to enable the management to give all attention to exploring for new ore.

Steel of Canada Business Holds up Well Despite General Slow-up

WHILE promising very material benefits to the heavy steel industry, the recent budget, it is understood, will have little or no effect upon the operations of the Steel Company of Canada, Limited.

That business of the company will not be as good as last year, when a record turnover was experienced, is admitted. Considering, however, that car loadings are consistently reaching lower levels, resulting in curtailed railway purchases; a slackening in the agricultural implement business; a falling off in automobile manufacturers, and general restrictions in the use of all commodities, the showing of the company is decidedly favorable. Earnings are understood to be well ahead of the dividend requirements.

Plant operations are being manitained by a steady flow of orders for replacements, renewals and repairs occasioned by the ordinary wear and tear on industrial machinery. At present, the steel plant is kept at full load capacity and the new works at Hamilton are contributing in a generous measure to the satisfactory turnover.

Credited with manufacturing a greater variety of finished steel products than any other manufacturer in the world, the Steel Company of Canada, Limited, operates twelve plants in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. These are located at strategic points for rail, inland water and ocean shipment.

ABITIBI POWER & PAPER

The new power site that will be developed by Abitibi Power & Paper Co. is located some 65 miles north of Cochrane, Ont. The development will harness six series of rapids known as Abitibi Canyon, Lobstick, Borntwood, Clay, Birch and Oil Can. The combination will give a 240-foot head, the estimated power being 275,000 horse power. The initial contract of the Abitibi Co. with the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission calls for 100,000 horse power, which will be used mainly in supplying the power requirements of the Sudbury district.

FAMOUS PLAYERS

Arthur Cohen, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, announces that the minimum of 250,000 shares required to be deposited under the offer to exchange for shares of Paramount Publix have already been deposited with the trust company. Shareholders of the Canadian company were given until May 25 to accept for shares of Paramount for five shares of Famous Players, but as the 25th happened to fall on a Sunday the offer remained open until the close of business May 26th. The exchange was contingent on the depositing of at least 250,000 shares of the Canadian corporation and the Paramount shares are to be delivered between now and June 5. The outstanding share capital of Paramount Publix was listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange last week, but officials of Paramount advise that no decision has yet been reached with regard to listing on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

during the first four months of 1930 averaged approximately $2,000 daily. A total output of $240,000 was established in the four months ending April 30th.

An improvement has been found in the grade of ore, the average mineral content exceeding $10. a ton, with an average of $9.60 being recovered.

ARNO MINES

Recent strength in Arno may be attributed to reports which state they have completed a satisfactory financial deal. One rumor on the Street was that Nipissing Mining Company may become interested in the enterprise. However, a Toronto official of Nipissing states that he knows nothing of any deal between the two companies.

NEWBEC MINES

Newbec officials confirm reports of a week ago to the effect that new good grade ore was encountered on the 125-foot level, east of any material previously discovered on that horizon. Figures are not available but the development is distinctly encouraging. The stock has been active of late, rising from below 10c to over 20c. The company still has a substantial tonnage of high grade on the 125 horizon that can be shipped at a profit.

NORDON CORPORATION

At the annual meeting of shareholders of Nordon Corporation, Ltd. held at Toronto, shareholders were told that during the past year the company had greatly augmented its holdings, now holding 161,820 acres of prospective oil land in western Canada. They also augmented their holdings in the United States, and now own leases and royalties on 86,487 acres, for a grand total of 248,307 acres. Other lands are now in process of being acquired.

MAYLAND OILS

Mayland No. 1 well is producing approximately 55 barrels daily, according to latest official figures. This company has 640 acres on which wells Nos. 2 and 3 are drilling at depths near the limestone.

CALMONT OILS

Calmont No. 4 well struck an unexpected flow of gas at 3,860 feet, believed in the Home sands. The well is now drilling at 3,871. The Home sands were not expected until about 4,200 feet. The No. 2 strick this formation about 3,600 feet but No. 4 was considered deeper. The gas flow is not of commercial proportions but is considerably encouraging. Calmont No. 7 is drilling in the Home sand at 4,490 feet.

PENINSULAR PETE

There are rumors around the Street regarding Peninsular Petroleums. It is understood that the company has made arrangements with a New York brokerage house to take a block of stock of the company at a price that is attractive, and will give the company all the funds necessary for it to carry on drilling for the next season. An official announcement is expected within the next few days.

CANADA MALTING

Directors of Canada Malting Company have declared a dividend of 37½ cents per share on the stock, payable June 16th to shareholders of record May 31st. Books close May 31 to June 16th. With the stock selling at 19½, the yield is almost 8%. Canada Malting stands to benefit materially as a result of the protection granted in the recent Dominion Budget, against dumping of distressed malt from the United States. The company's earnings record has been good, in spite of heavy imports from the United States, and its working position is secure.

JAMAICA PUBLIC SERVICE

Announcement is expected to be made this week of new financing by Jamaica Public Service Company. It is understood an issue of bonds will be made on the Canadian market by a local investment house.

The new offering, it is understood, will amount to $2,000,000, and is being arranged to take care of the recent acquisition by the company of the St. James Utilities, and other extensions being carried out by the Jamaica Public Service Company.

NATIONAL BRICK

The order for the brick to be used in the construction of the new University of Montreal has been secured by the National Brick Company of Laprairie, Limited. This is said to be the largest face brick order that has ever been placed with any company in the Province of Quebec, if not in the whole of the Dominion.

EASTERN STEEL PRODUCTS

The dividend of 50 cents per share on the common stock of Eastern Steel Products, Ltd., declared a week ago is stated officially to have been an extra interim disbursement. At the beginning of this year directors declared a dividend of $2. per share, of which $1. covered 1929 operations and $1. for 1930. Hence, within the past six months the company has paid or declared $2.50 per share.

The White Paper of the British Colonial Office (issued May 27 by the Foreign Secretary to the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations), in accepting the findings of the Palestine Inquiry Commission, gives the keynote of the British policy to be expected in the Holy Land. Of first importance to the Government is the fact that: "The conflict of interest remains and the task of holding the balance has certainly not decreased in difficulty; the situation is one of great delicacy calling for the exercise of all possible patience and circumspection. The Government is concerned to provide a remedy and to this task they mean to address themselves with all resources at their disposal. Remedial measures cannot be devised or introduced at a moment's notice, caution is essential and the ground must be carefully examined before an advance can be safely made. For these reasons the Government is not in a position to formulate precise and concrete proposals in regard to all points that the Commission raised."

The Government accepts the findings of the Commission as to the nature of the outbreak; the Zionist complaints against Grand Mufti; Zionist complaints against the Arab Executive; Zionist complaints against the Government and minor Arab grievances and then says: "The Government does not consider that these conclusions in themselves call for special action." Reference is made to that part of the Commission report which said that the Government had no knowledge of the activities which the Grand Mufti may have indulged in private, but in public the Mufti at noon, August 23rd., and thereafter, tried to promote peace and restore order. The White Paper says: "The report does not purport to assign any specific degree of blame to the Mohammedan authorities and in the matters of innovations of practice little blame can be attached to the Grand Mufti in which some Jewish religious authorities also would not have to share." The Government says it has no further comments to make on this subject.

Of paramount importance are the problems of immigration and land. The White Paper, in re-affirming the soundness of the policy based upon the principle that "immigration shall not exceed the economic capacity of the country at any time to absorb new arrivals," says that everything turns upon the absorptive capacity being correctly gauged. The question, involving as it does intricate considerations of land settlement and development, cannot be tackled hastily. While an investigator is in Palestine working on this matter "temporary measures are being taken to safeguard certain elements of the population." The Government is working on the question of providing credit facilities for Palestinian agriculturists and also on the Commission's recommendation that the selection of immigrants under the labor schedule ought not to be left to the General Federation of Jewish Labor in Palestine. Note this: Immigration legislation will be introduced "with the object of controlling the disposition of agricultural lands in such manner at to prevent the dispossession of the indigenous agricultural population."

The White Paper, in declaring itself on self-government, (a matter which it says deeply concerns the Jewish Agency) states that: "A measure of self-government for Palestine cannot be considered which is not compatible with the requirement of the Mandate. The absence of any measure of self-government in Palestine is not due to any lack of goodwill on the part of the Mandatory power."

On the subject of defense and security the White Paper says: "As the Commission pointed out, large numbers of police in August 1929 would not necessarily have prevented the outbreak. Arrangements have been made ensuring the dispatch of reinforcements to Palestine with the least possible delay if the need should arise. The government is fully satisfied as to the need for sealed armories. Without them adequate defense of the colonies can be ensured only at a prohibitive cost."

As to the issuance of a clear statement of policy, the White Paper says: "The Government does not challenge the view that a further and more explicit statement of policy is required and it is its intention in due course to issue such a statement. Commission recommendations relating to the functions of the Zionist Organization and Palestine Zionist Executive will also be adopted when the proposed statement is drawn up."

Above are the main points of the White Paper of May 27, 1930. Before it was issued the English Zionist Federation had decided not to hold a protest meeting against the immigration stoppage in Palestine. In view of the White Paper, however, it was decided to protest. Zionists in this country, after reading the above, cannot fail to share the feeling of the English Zionists that they have no great cause for optimism. T.I.A.

From Our Contemporaries

The Jewish Day, of New York, says:

"Another little step and nothing will remain of the Balfour Declaration and the Mandate except two empty, worthless 'White Papers' that one throws into the waste-basket. A few days ago a Left-Labor member in the British parliament accused the Labor Government of 'doing the dirty work of British imperialism.' He said it with regard to its activities in India. 'It is fated to do the dirty work of all European and Arabic anti-Semites' — this may be said with regard to its activity in Eretz Israel. For no anti-Semitic outburst throughout the world has ever caused the Jewish people such deep pain as this 'White Paper,' which reveals so cynically the game played by England in its Mandate policies.

"No other government would have acted so as to give the impression that the Balfour Declaration and the Mandate were given for one purpose only, that of protecting the Arabs from the Jews. No statesmanlike British government would have allowed itself to speak of 'depriving the native population of land.' All anti-Semitic national saviors, wherever they may be, are always saving the 'native' population from the alien 'aggressors' — the Jews. If this is everywhere a lie, it is a thousandfold a lie in Palestine, where the effendis are the expropriators and where the Jews pay with gold for every stony, swampy parcel that they buy. We do not mean to say that the British government consists of anti-Semites, but that makes it all the worse for it: while itself not anti-Semitic, England is doing the dirty anti-Semitic work.

"There is a World Court in Europe. If it has to be, we shall indict England before this Court. For in the England of MacDonald, there is no sense of righteousness, justice and responsibility for a promise given by a government. But there is still a sense of justice in the World Court. And there we hope to come out the victors. Our victory may perhaps seem miraculous — as the victory of the weaker over the stronger. But that miracle will have to occur."

The Jewish Morning Journal says:

"The whittling down of the Balfour Declaration and the Mandate goes forward until nothing more than a shadow will remain of it. The government has swallowed the whole report of the Shaw Commission with all its abominable conclusions about the 'innocence' of the Mufti, of the Arab Executive, of the Palestine government. It will also investigate the libel that the Histadruth passes only such Chalutzim as are Socialistically inclined, and will soon issue a statement with regard to the influence of the Zionist Executive with the Palestine government. What that means one can imagine. That is a hint that the Executive will lose its last remaining prestige and influence with the Palestine government.

"It seems as if it were useless to 'negotiate' further with the MacDonald cabinet, for behind all these things one sees an attempt to appease the Jews with smooth phrases."

Ha'Aretz of Jerusalem, says:

"The Labor government's leaders know the nature of our enterprise and its social and moral character and they have endorsed the libels of our enemies but have not sufficient courage to annul the Balfour Declaration which is contrary to Premier MacDonald's reaffirmed and so-called Zionist policy.

"Nevertheless they have rubber-stamped all the false conclusions totally ignoring the need of the Jewish people and the sublime reconstruction effort. We do not accept the Colonial Office's conspiracy to liquidate Zionism. We have had enough of surprise attacks and shocks. The Jewish people now demand a clear situation, either the fulfilment of the Mandate in letter and spirit or a complete withdrawal from the obligations as concerns the Jewish people's national home.

Davar says:

"It is impossible to believe that the conversations with the Arab delegation convinced the government the Arabs are right and we are wrong. Hesitation to proceed with the exalted task of the fulfilment of the superb humanitarian mission has prompted the government to erase its obligations, forget its undertakings, surrender the weak to the strong and the victims of the riots to the organisers of the riots.

"Our hope that public opinion in England would be aroused is being disappointed but the justice of Israel does not bend its head before violence. We shall disclose the falsehood underlying the latest document for if this is British policy in Palestine today, tomorrow the Mandate no longer will exist."

Doar Hayom comments:

"The axe is raised against immigration and colonisation . . . The government's attack is aimed at the principle vein for the Shaw Commission decided the main question, whether the Zionists should regulate immigration or Zionism's worst enemies."

The Nation says: "Palestine Adds its bit to the British Government's troubles in India, where it is highly necessary to conciliate Mohammedan sympathies. An Arab delegation from Palestine, including the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, conferred with the British Colonial Office on the subjects, among others, of land immigration, and a constitution; and on May 13 Lord Passfield was obliged to reply "that the sweeping constitutional changes demanded by them were wholly unacceptable, since they would have rendered it impossible for His Majesty's Government to carry out its obligations under the terms of the mandate." In consequence the Arabs are reported to be leaving London in a bitter frame of mind—a bad thing for India. Six days after Lord Passfield's statement the High Commissioner for Palestine, according to an Associated Press dispatch, announced that, effective May 15, all immigration to Palestine was suspended pending the report of Sir John Simpson, who has been sent out from London to report on land and immigration. This report led to a well-justified and world-wide Jewish protest, backed by a peaceful half-day general strike of all Jews in Palestine. Two days after the original announcement Dr. Drummond Shiels, undersecretary of the Colonial Office, hastily announced in the House of Commons that there had been no general stoppage of immigration and no final decision as to a schedule covering the period ending September 30. Under the mandate the Jews have the right of immigration and land settlement in accordance with the economic possibilities of the country, and they have reminded the hearty support of fair-minded persons in insisting that their rights be respected to the letter by the mandatory Power, no matter what the exigences of imperial politics. We believe that it is the purpose of the British government to respect those rights. The economic and cultural achievements of Zionism have been a cheering feature of the post-war decade. The further development of this admirable program will undoubtedly be one of the best means of settling political differences between Arab and Jew."

Labor Organizations Protest

A resolution of protest against Great Britain's policy of excluding Jews from Palestine in direct abregation of the spirit and letter of the Balfour declaration was read at a meeting of various Jewish labor organizations at the Standard Theatre, Spadina Avenue. It is being forwarded to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

"We are assembled to protest against the actions of the British Government during the last month," said A. Rhinewine. "It solemnly declared that its policy was to build up a Jewish home in Palestine. Ten months since the bloody days of August, 1929, it has taken steps to prohibit Jewish immigration into Palestine. Means are now being considered to forbid the Jews from purchasing the devastated lands," he declared.

Berl Locker, of Berlin, member of the executive of the Second International, and general secretary of the World Poale-Zion Association, declared that capitalistic political systems were endorsing the prohibition of Jews, with the intention of exploiting the natural resources and labor of Palestine. The British Government should throw the doors of Palestine open to Jews and Arabs alike," he said.

Hair Treatments

We give hair treatments that really do put the hair in good condition. External treatments alone cannot produce these results without the proper advice and diet. The condition of the human system has more to do with your hair than you realize. Mr. Pember has given his whole business life to the study of the hair and system from the hair standpoint.

A Few Questions and Suggestions May Assist You in Attaining Your Desire

Is your hair in a healthy condition?
Is it the shade you prefer?
Are there a few tell-tale grey hairs appearing?
Is there an unwelcome reddish tinge to your hair?
Is your hair bleached too light a shade?
Has your hair been cut to suit the contour of your head?
Do you ever consult a specialist before you use hair tints and avoid spoiling your hair?
Has your hair already been spoiled and needs correcting?
When you get your permanent wave do you get the best that can be produced?
Are you using Compound dyes or liquid dyes?

FROZEN FRUIT MAYONNAISE

½ cupful whipping cream
½ cupful boiled salad dressing
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 halves of pear
6 apricot halves
3 small slices of pineapple

Cut the fruit into small pieces of equal size. Beat the cream until stiff, then fold in the salad dressing and the lemon juice.

Now add the fruit and mix thoroughly, being careful not to crush the fruit. Pour into pound baking powder cans or molds of similar shape, cover top with waxed paper, fit on cover and pack in equal parts of ice and salt four hours. Unmold, cut in slices and serve immediately. A few sliced maraschino cherries may be added to the fruit if a more colorful salad is desired.

This makes a delightful salad for a wedding luncheon. Decorate with whole ripe strawberries set in pink rose petals and top with one large strawberry.

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM

1 cupful sliced ripe strawberries
½ cupful sugar
3 tablespoonfuls orange juice
1 cupful cream

Hull and wash strawberries. Drain and cut into thin slices crosswise with a sharp knife.

Mix with sugar and orange juice and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add to cream and freeze in four pars ice to one part salt.

If the strawberries are very ripe and full flavored the orange juice may be omitted, although it adds greatly to the flavor.

Serve garnished with thin slices of large ripe strawberries alternated with thin slices of orange cut lengthwise.

nations of the world felt that they owed it to the Jews to requite them for an accumulation of age-long wrongs. The Arabs were in the picture as spectators of the great process, secured, however, in the matter of their basic rights.

Acting on the tri-lateral understanding the interested parties, in the main, carried out their undertakings. That difficulties would arise between the Jews and the Arabs, due to the very nature of the situation, soon became evident. And unfortunately the terms of the understanding had in many respects been allowed to remain vague and susceptible of conflicting interpretations. Attempts were from time to time made to define the obscure wording of the Balfour Declaration, and these generally resulted in restrictions of the Jewish rights. On the whole, however, the arrangement worked. The Jews for their part entered into the venture with inspiring zeal and energy. The choicest of its young manhood from all parts of the world flocked to Palestine to make sacrifices, endure hardships, suffer privations, in order to build up a homeland for their people. The masses at large gave money, freely, cheerfully, in tens of millions of dollars to implement the Jewish end of the bargain.

And what was the result? Palestine began to flourish again, as it had not done for centuries. Settlements grew up in places which were formerly waste. Towns and cities sprang into being. Culture, the arts and the sciences once more thrived. Palestine became the miracle place of the world. A magnificent spectacle was being enacted—the people of the prophets reunited with the soil of the prophets, and hopes of new generations of seers and God-finders, began to warm the heart of mankind. And in all this process of reclamation the Jewish people were scrupulously careful in their treatment of the Arab natives. They came to Palestine not as conquerors, ruthlessly to carve out a place for themselves. They came as friends, offering their wealth, their energy, and their culture towards a common fund to make the land a home of beauty and happiness. Jewish immigrants did not oust Arabs from entrenched positions. They created economic opportunities. Jewish knowledge shed a light to brighten the life of the entire population. The fact has been established, and never gainsaid by Arab partizans that the Arab population not only did not in any way suffer from the ingression of the Jews, but benefitted in every conceivable form.

Then came the riots in Palestine last August. A section of the Arab population was displeased with the arrangement whereby the Jews were to establish a homeland for themselves. They have been agitating against the Balfour Declaration, against the mandate, against the bargain or treaty between the League of Nations, Great Britain and the Jewish people. Last August some of them went so far as to stage riots. They plundered, they murdered. They prepetrated most shocking brutalities.

And now we have the last episode. Great Britain had sent an enquiry commission into Palestine. Two reports were presented by members of the commission, the minority report of the Labor member Harry Snell, being entirely different from that of the majority. While the report was being prepared, and for a time after it was published, Ramsay MacDonald kept on assuring the Jews that the Balfour Declaration would be solemnly observed. The leading statesmen of England kept on insisting that Great Britain could not and would not violate her pledge. The government tacitly and expressly endorsed and affirmed this proposition.

Suddenly there appears on the scene the new "White Paper" defining the government's policy. Among the pronouncements there is the new decision on the two most vital phases of the Palestine situation. The government suspends Jewish immigration, and it promises to change the laws with regard to the sale of the land by Arabs to Jews.

We said before that MacDonald seeks to justify his course by a bit of very specious logic. The reasoning is so patently perverted that it is scarcely believable: It takes the proposition that the civil and political rights of the Arabs are to be safeguarded as a major premise. It then assumes the middle term that Jewish immigration is an infringement of these rights. The conclusion follows that Jewish immigraton should therefure be stopped.

There is of course, in the first place, a begging of the question in assuming that Jewish immigration is an infringement of Arab rights. It has as a matter of fact, been established that Jewish immigration has proved a boon to the Arabs economically and civilly.

But the main offense against logic and common sense lies in this, that sight is lost of the obligation involved in the first and major promise of establishing a Jewish homeland in Palestine. How, in the name of reason can Jews establish a homeland in Palestine if they are not allowed to get in there, and to buy land? It is surely easier to reconcile Jewish immigration with the protection of Arab rights than to reconcile the stoppage of immigration with the establishment of a homeland.

The British government made a solemn bargain with the League of Nations and the Jews to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish homeland. The undertaking involves difficulties. But the League of Nations and the Jewish people had faith in British colonial experience and capacity to achieve this task. The Jews lived up to the terms of the bargain fully and fairly.

Ramsay MacDonald has broken faith with the Jewish people. And he has broken faith with the people of Great Britain. The British people have an inborn sense of fairness. They will not countenance this violation of a British pledge by a minister even if he happens to be the premier of the country. Let us recall this that when Winston Churchill found it expedient to define and limit the Balfour Declaration in an official paper, he sought and secured the consent of the party of the second part—the Jewish people. He insisted on getting the signatures of representatives of all parties in Zionism. MacDonald blasted the hopes of the Jews of the world without even informing the latter of his intentions. He treated the whole matter with incredible callousness.

We believe that the finer spirit of the British people—the spirit of the Balfours and the Lloyd Georges and Jan Smutses will revolt against this travesty of British principles by the government which happens at present to be at the head of affairs. We have faith that the sound sense of justice inherent in the British character will not tolerate this arrogant action of the government in treating a solemn pledge as a "scrap of paper".

We believe that when the facts are fairly presented before the bar of public opinion in Canada, we will get the support of our Canadian fellow citizens in our grievance against the MacDonald government. Canadian statesmanship has ever been friendly to our cause. MacKenzie King, Rowell, Meighen and other leading spokesmen of both parties have on many occasions shown a deep understanding of the Zionist situation. During the past year two of the foremost clergymen of Canada visited Palestine and both have caught the spirit and significance of the Palestine enterprise most profoundly. Dr. Cody and Dr. Inkster are typical of the capacity of Canadians for sensing the value of the Jewish achievements in Palestine. The Jewish people have poured wealth, energy, idealism and manpower into Palestine to build a home in keeping with, and under the terms of the Balfour Declaration. It is an outrage on the part of the MacDonald government at this time of the day to break faith with us by cancelling the Balfour Declaration. Stop Jewish immigration. Prohibit the sale of land! What is to become of our colonies, of our university, of our towns and cities if support is to be checked? And what will become of our beautiful hopes which have sustained us? And what will conscientious Britons think of the government that has been guilty of the great betrayal?

Rabbi Eisendrath's Editorial

situation. In the first place, Liberal Judaism is still very young in this Dominion, and Confirmation itself has not established itself as something that is not novel, but new. Then too the rite of Bar Mitzvah plays so prominent a role that most of our religious training is concentrated on this particular event, and Confirmation, even when it is observed, is relegated to a lesser role. Without attempting to minimize the beauty and appeal of the traditional Bar Mitzvah ceremony we should like to quote from an English contemporary, Rabbi Harold F. Reinhart, writing in the West London Synagogue Magazine, to point out certain of its limitations: The idea behind the Bar Mitzvah service, which is so dear to many Jews today, is a significant one. The boy, upon reaching the age of thirteen, was supposed to have arrived at manhood's estate, and therefore to assume full responsibility for his acts in the sight of God and man. But for very sufficient reasons, the old-fashioned Bar Mitzvah ceremony does not measure up to its ideal. For two important reasons, its limitations are such as to discredit it. First, boys at thirteen, in our present environment, have not reached majority in any true sense of the word. At different times, in different lands, and under different circumstances, real age varies from the corresponding chronological age. In olden Jewish society, there is no doubt that a lad of thirteen was relatively as mature as one of fifteen or sixteen to-day. Because of the extreme youthfulness of boys trained for Bar Mitzvah now, and because of the circumstances under which they are schooled, their actual preparation is reduced to a routine drilling in certain paragraphs to be read or recited, a performance which is far from edifying or inspiring. Thus the very purpose of Bar Mitzvah is, to a certain extent, defeated. A further evil consequence of the system is that Bar Mitzvah is interpreted by many boys as a symbol of their completion of religious education, when that education is usually not even seriously begun. "In the second place, Bar Mitzvah makes provision only for boys and not for girls. In our times, women take as active part in religious affairs, public as well as private, as do men. This is a fact that none can fail to see, and which surely enlightened people would not deprecate. Why then there should be any discrimination between the sexes in the matter of a public acknowledgment of religious responsibility, quite eludes the powers of the most refined imagination."

It was to correct these two patent limitations that Reform, whose essential philosophy—despite its many traducers—has ever been to retain all that is of significance and worth in traditional Judaism, and to readopt it to modern conditions and needs, seized upon this long hallowed rite of Bar Mitzvah and refashioned it to fit more nearly the circumstances of our contemporary civilization through the ceremony of Confirmation. Thus, to quote again the article previously referred to: "Instead of admitting children at the age of thirteen, it accepts them at fifteen or sixteen. Instead of allowing them to be confirmed after a merely nominal training in a 'passage of the Law,' it expects a full course in the essentials of Judaism. It aims to impress upon the confirmants the realization that Jewish study is an aid to life, and gives them to understand that Confirmation is but the beginning of real preparation. Instead of providing for boys only, it makes identical provision for girls and boys. Finally, since the exact age is not considered of prime importance, it has set aside for the rite of Confirmation, the Feast of Pentecost, which as the traditional anniversary of the giving of the Torah, is in itself a time which lends added significance to the ceremony of consecration to the religion of Torah."

Here, then, is one of Reform Judaism's most valued contributions to the survival of our faith. Through a ceremony deeply spiritual and touchingly beautiful, it would bring to Jewish youth—both boys and girls—at a period in adolescence, when ideals and allegiances are most effectively implanted, a profound sense of their religious responsibility and of their loyalty to the household of Israel. It is earnestly to be observed that the Confirmation, exemplifying the truest spirit of Reform, might become in Canada, as elsewhere particularly in the United States, a vital and valued institution.
